

COLUMBIA NEEDS FUNDS

Athletic Body Must Raise $6,000
by End of Term.

TRACK MEN IN HARD LUCK

Wretched Condition of South Field Makes Possible Only Light Work.

The finances of the athletic teams at Columbia are causing the managers much worry, for, according to the monthly statement issued by James Myers, the graduate manager, yesterday more than $6,000 will have to be raised before the end of the present term if the teams are to finish their schedules with a clean sheet, so far as their financial support is concerned. Unless the required sum is raised before the middle of next month, the athletic association will have to begin the year next fall with a deficit.

The total amount collected to date is $945. Of this the students subscribed in membership fees $4,985; the alumni $3,605 and the faculty $460. The remainder, $422, came from miscellaneous sources. The budget calls for $17,768, leaving a balance still to be collected of $6,344. The chief difficulty seems to be in the matter of making delinquent student meet their pledges. One hundred and twenty-five outstanding pledges cannot be collected, and it is planned by the manager that if they do not meet their promises he will have their names published in the college paper.

Aside from the unpaid pledges, the association expects to receive $1,000 in special donations, but this will leave more than $300 to be collected, which means that five hundred additional membership subscriptions must be obtained. The Rowing Club, which has a budget of more than $10,000, is supported only in part by the athletic association, and most of its funds are derived from other sources. With the Rowing Club budget included in the general association budget, the total amount that will have to be raised before June 15 is nearly $12,000.

Bernie Wefers is having a hard time in getting his trackmen started in regular training. The main reason for this is the fact that the South Field track is still in wretched condition, making it impossible for the runners to do any but the lightest kind of work. The field men are unable to practice at all because of the slippiness of the grass on the field and they have not attempted any work. The jumping and vaulting pits are the only adjuncts of the field that are in fit condition to make practice in those events possible.

H. H. Jacobs, the sprinter, who has injured in an underclass rush on the campus a week ago, will probably not be able to get in the meets with Pratt Institute and Syracuse. Jacobs got a badly dislocated shoulder, and although he has been able to attend his classes, the physicians thought it best that he give up running for the time being. It is probable that he will lose another two or three weeks, but Wefers hopes to have him in form for the intercollegiates. Harry Babcock, the captain of the team, who was bothered with a bad knee in the early part of last season, has worked out all the stiffness and is again in good condition.

The freshman team will meet both De Witt Clinton and the High School of Commerce early in the season, and efforts are also being made to arrange for competitions with other freshman teams. Columbia has never had much success with freshman teams, but Wefers is determined that he will put the first year men in as many contests as can be scheduled.

Although the Columbia crews gave up indoor practice more than two weeks ago, they have been able to have less than half a dozen rows on the water because of unpredictable weather conditions. With a backyard lot of oarsmen, Rice is not very well pleased with the prospects, for he says that every day of practice that is lost will make it just so much the harder for the crew to get together in order to make up in a way for the loss of rowing on stormy days, he has changed the plan of training, and will make the oarsmen run across country on the Palisades when it is impossible to get on the river. Hitherto the oarsmen have had a vacation when there was no rowing, but Rice says he has found that in order to keep the men in any sort of condition they will have substitute running.

The "varsity" wrestling team finished second in the intercollegiate championships, although it won only one meet during the season. Of the men who wrestled this season, McCannies, who won the intercollegiate 135-pound championship, is the only one who will not be in college next year. Norton, Cattuccino and Holsworth will be seniors, and Brady, Carruthers and Sanborn juniors.

VICTORY FOR RACING MEN

NORTON, N.Y., April 2.—A test case to determine the stability of betting at the Jamestown racetrack was made yesterday and resulted in an overwhelming victory for the racing interests. A special race was arranged between Bend Over and First Aid. Fred Miller laid odds on both horses and after the finish paid off on the winner, Bend Over won easily. After he settled Miller and his clerk were arrested, taken before a magistrate and given an immediate hearing. The defendants were discharged on the ground that the law had not been violated.

The defense was built up on the decision of the Supreme Court of New York, which decided in the case of the People against Orlando Jones and John Fallon in favor of the latter.
